

Sexual harassment and assault are, unfortunately, still a reality—also at UCF. Since it can be hard to find out what to do when you are in the situation, we gathered some information that could help you if you ever are, hoping that you won't need it.

Before we start, we would like to emphasize two notes that we think are important to keep in mind when dealing with sexual harassment and abuse:

First, you decide what constitutes assault for you. Violence comes in many forms and doesn't always have to be physical. Whenever you feel uncomfortable, threatened, or oppressed, take those feelings seriously.

Second, how and from whom you seek support is also up to you. This flyer does not prescribe what you have to do in which case, but serves to give you an overview of which contact points there are and what they can offer you.

I. Offers by the University:

Currently, the prime address to address sexual harassment is the Gleichstellungsbüro („Equal Opportunities Office“). In contrast to the regular academic staff, talks with the Gleichstellungsbeauftragte are strictly confidential, unless you wish otherwise. There is a central, university-wide office as well as for each faculty. The University-wide gleichstellungsbüro offers support in German and in English.

Of course, you can talk to any person in the academic staff you feel comfortable with. However, consider that the Gleichstellungsbeauftragte will probably be more experienced in dealing with cases of sexual harassment and that other staff is not bound to confidentiality.

Addresses for support within the University:
